Dr. Blunt Here.

Dr. W. F. Blunt, state health officer, is in the city today. Dr. Blunt spent yesterday at the state line, where he inspected some twenty odd cars of freight that has been tied up there several days by the quarantine officers. After the inspection had been completed the doctor found that five cars of through freight, mostly hardware, with some canned goods and sugar, could be released; the other, nineteen cars, of dry goods, most of which was packed in New Orleans, was left at the station.

Dr. Blunt is here today in the interest of the people of Texas in general and is watching every outlet in the eastern part of the state. Everything at the quarantine station is quiet, no one being there now but the officers.

The Milk In the Coconut.

Every boy knows the three eyes to be found in one end of a coconut, and many a boy has bored these eyes out, or one or two of them, with the small blade of a pocketknife so as to get at the milk in the coconut, which he has then drained out into a cup or drunk direct from the coconut itself. But there is a more fascinating way still of getting at the milk in the coconut.

By this other method the coconut is opened at the other end from the eyes. The coconut is struck all around gently and repeatedly with a hammer, or a stone will do, at a distance of about one-third of the way down from the top, about where the arctic circle would be on a globe.

A continual gentle tapping will finally crack the shell of the nut all around; not in a line exactly on the circle perhaps, but pretty near to it. Sometimes it cracks shell and meat of the nut, too, so that both can be lifted off together; sometimes it cracks out only a shell cap at the top, which is lifted off, and the cap of meat underneath is then cut out around with a knife.

And then there you are with the white lined coconut cup to drink from.—New York Sun.

Getting an Extra Ration.

Medical Officer (going his rounds)—Well, Murphy, how are you this morning?

Private M.—Much better, sir.
M. O.—Is your appetite good?
Private M.—Yes, sir.
M. O.—Are you getting enough to eat?

Private M.—No, sir.
M. O.—What would you like in addition to your present diet?

Private M.—Another pound of bread, sir.
M. O.—That I cannot give you, as the regulations do not admit of a soldier receiving a double ration of bread in one day.

Private M. (after a moment's hesitation)—Could you not let me have the extra pound and mark it down as bread purchased?

He got it.—London Telegraph.

Fatal Friendship.

Jack and his two pretty cousins happened to be walking along in front of a drug store.

"I wonder," said Ethel, "if, astronomically speaking, Uncle Henry's son is in the right sign for ice cream soda?"

"I'm afraid not," replied Gwendolen with her eye on the youth. "I don't see any signs of the soda act."

Jack grinned and marched then directly past the drug store by way of punishment.—Chicago Tribune.

One whale will furnish from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds of bone. At San Francisco the bone is split, sorted as to color and tied in bundles. These split pieces are called shales and are three to eight feet long and weigh from three to seven pounds.
